

Health

CAMBRIDGE news

Our clinic, Cambridge IVF have been featured in Cambridge News, Health Supplement again this week.

Since Cambridge IVF opened in 2011, the Trumpington-based clinic has gone from strength-to-strength, meeting a growing demand for fertility testing and treatment.

Alex Cavanagh, Rosie maternity hospital's commercial development manager, said they see hundreds of couples every year who are struggling to conceive.

"Before we opened Cambridge IVF we were not able to provide the full treatment pathway for those who require specialist IVF treatments," he said.

"Having our own IVF clinic means we can offer an extended range of fertility treatments led by the same specialist consultants that patients will have seen at the Rosie following referral by their GP for fertility investigations."

To view full article on the Cambridge News website - click here.

Monday 08 February 2016.