

Transferring frozen embryos improves success rates and is recommended for most patients, watch the following video for more information.